Sometimes sharing isn’t caring

When taken correctly prescription medication can help relieve symptoms, fight certain infections, and improve functioning and quality of life.

But when they are misused, shared, or taken incorrectly, the consequences can be devastating. Prescription drugs can only be safely used at the dose prescribed and for the person they are prescribed for.

It is illegal to share medications, so don’t jeopardize your future

Keep your medications, and that fact that you’re prescribed to them to yourself.

This will help limit the peer pressure to share.

Keep your medication in a safe and secure place.

Medicines that are prescribed and safe for you may hurt or put your friend’s life at risk.

mededucship.org
studenthealth.ucsd.edu/aodrxabuse.shtml